

Vince Beyl is currently the director of Indian Education in the Bemidji Public Schools. He is a U.S. Marine Corps veteran who served in Vietnam from 1970 to 1971. He is one of the original members of the Red Earth Singers from Tama, Iowa, a champion singing drum group. He also was a traditional dancer and competed and traveled to many champion powwows throughout the United States and Canada. As an educator, he has had the great honor and privilege to work with American Indians of all ages in promoting educational opportunities, personal enhancement, and spiritual growth. His strong beliefs of perpetuating individual success, nurturing spiritual values, encouraging tribal advancement, and promoting positive change among Indian people have been a consistent message in Native communities and at schools throughout North America for many years.
