

Dr. Marsha Simon is the assistant director of technical assistance and professional learning of the Great Lakes Equity Center, where she serves as center lead to design and manage services offered to state and local education agencies in Region V states as well as for product development and regional networking. She draws from research, professional knowledge, and experiences in advancing equity and social justice for all students. Her university teaching includes teacher education courses that align with her research interests in preservice teacher identity and implications for culturally responsive and inclusive practices, policies, and structures.